

CONCERT

Frank Ifield

In association with the National Folk Festival

There are not many artists who can say they've had the Beatles as their support act or been the first to have three consecutive hits on the British charts. Frank Ifield can lay claim to both. Yet this world-renowned performer had his roots in Dural, 36 kilometres north-west of Sydney, where he learnt to play the ukulele, set Australian poetry to his own tunes and listened to the yodelling of Tex Morton—a true 'folk' background.

Hear Frank Ifield perform with musicians Chloe and Jason Roweth and in conversation with folklore collector Rob Willis.
